Dear EngageWell Search Committee,

I am writing to apply for the position of Executive Director of EngageWell Community Health & Innovation Collaborative and EngageWell IPA. EngageWell's work, integrating community-based organizations into how healthcare is delivered and financed, with a commitment to harm reduction and to the dignity of the people it serves, reflects what I have spent my career building toward. I would welcome the opportunity to lead its next chapter of growth.

Revenue diversification has been central to my work. At the Osborne Association, I structured and negotiated more than $10M in new government, institutional, and corporate contracts and raised over $400K from private donors, foundations, and corporate partners, including REDF and JC Flowers, by identifying prospects, developing proposals, personally leading solicitations, and stewarding those relationships with the CEO and Board. I also built pricing, monetization plans, and budgets for earned-revenue social ventures, and I helped move a 140-person division from a deficit exceeding $1M to a 13% operating surplus within one year while partnering with the CEO and the Board's Finance and Audit Committees.

I also bring hands-on healthcare financing experience. As a fractional CFO, I manage the finances of a physician practice that participates in an IPA, including its IPA-related reporting and billing to Medicaid managed care and other insurance plans. Earlier in my career, I advised Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries on plan benefits and enrollment. At Osborne, I partnered with the Director of El Rio, a substance use treatment program for people returning from incarceration, on budgeting, hiring, and participant placements. That work taught me that people engage with care when they are met where they are, treated with dignity, and trusted to make their own choices. Nonjudgmental, low-barrier access is not only a value; it is how programs earn the trust that keeps people connected to services.

A small organization needs a leader who can set strategy and also run the numbers. I currently oversee payroll, accounts payable, invoicing, reconciliations, and financial statements for boards and funders; lead annual audit coordination; and, as an IRS-registered tax preparer, compile Form 990 returns for multiple nonprofits. I have also built organizations from the ground up, from a fitness business I grew from a $5,000 investment to $10M in annual sales to an 18-month NYPA workforce program in which 92% of participants earned a certificate.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how I can strengthen EngageWell's financial sustainability, grow its network, and advance its mission. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Clavel Lazarre, MBA
